Description of how non-attendance is managed by the school

Non-attendance is managed in state schools in line with the Department of Education procedures, Managing Student Absences and Enforcing Enrolment and Attendance at State Schools and Roll Marking in State Schools, which outline processes for managing and recording student attendance and absenteeism.

- The school operates a text-messaging system to give parents early notification if a child is not at school and asks for parents to contact the office to discuss reasons for absences.
- Rolls are marked each morning on both Junior and Senior Campus. Students who are flexed off at Senior report to the office on arrival.
- Students late to school report to the office and are counselled by the Principal or Deputy Principal. Regular late arrivers are given consequences for this which may include Attendance Cards.
- Roll marking is completed for each teacher in each class using ID Attend during the day to ensure up-to-date electronic records.
- School staff contact home for students who are regularly absent from school to discuss issues with intent to encourage attendance.
- Five-weekly attendance audits were performed on Senior Campus – attendance linked to eligibility to attend extra-curricular activities such as Leadership Camp and Graduation.
- A Teacher Aide is employed on each campus to contact home to follow up ‘unexplained’ absences.
- Community Education Counsellors and Student Case Managers visited homes of students with poor attendance records to encourage re-entry to schooling.
- Residential Campus runs reward activities to encourage students to return promptly from holidays.
- Letters are sent home to families when children are absent for more than three unexplained days. Where there is not a suitable response alternatives such as making the child’s enrolment ‘inactive’ or sending home letters to start legal prosecution are considered.

Early leavers information

The destinations of young people who left the school in Years 10, 11 and prior to completing Year 12 are described below.

Student who chose to leave school prior to completion of their QCE are supported to transition to either full-time work or further education. Support staff work in the school and network with community organisations (such as Centacare and Youth Connect) to support students to make a smooth transition.

As we are a mining community the nature of the city population is transient - families leave town for either interstate or international destinations.
